For The Game Of Our Lives

AUTISM-FRIENDLY EARLY OPENINGS

The National Football Museum will be opening its doors early for those with autism and other needs, exploring why football is the game of our lives in a relaxed environment.

Visitors can explore the galleries before general public access, with gallery sound levels at a minimum and a quiet room available.

There will be plenty of opportunities to kick a football around in our fun interactive games, while non-football fans can enjoy craft activities, handling objects, trails and more.

The activities are free and suitable to anyone aged 5 and above. No need to book - simply drop in and enjoy what we have to offer!

If you have any question regarding our autism-friendly opening, please contact us via the following email:
